LOCALLY SPEAKING

"In every work that he began he did it with all his heart—and prospered."

EVERY now and then some one gets terribly peeved at The News for failure to furnish a list of "prominent people". Usually this call comes from out-of-town concerns who have something to sell—and in most cases competitive to our local institutions. No encouragement will ever come from these quarters in such cases.

CONGRATULATIONS to the city officials on their decision to at once put into effect the special summer water rate. The recent rain came at a good time and will serve the need right now, but there will be plenty of hot, dry days ahead.

NEWS readers were not surprised to see the article in Sunday's issue by T. B. Hinkle rate Page One. Mr. Hinkle, like many others interested in the welfare of Paris, realizes that we must look ahead. The News concurs in his ideas on aviation. Many people believe, right now, that it is safer to fly in a plane to points a hundred miles or so away than to risk the hazards of the highways. People who scoff at flying today will, in a few years, do much of their travel by air.

ONE of the outstanding business men in Texas, seeing a friend from Paris, said: "I want to congratulate your town on that national cotton goods week you put on up there. Everybody I see who passed through your town during that week said it was the best observance of the week they had seen anywhere in the United States". And equally as many are talking about the great Made-In-Paris Week Exposition.

THANKS to the friends who started a discussion in this column Sunday which, it is hoped, will result in some good being accomplished. Now we have a letter from one of our women who has an enviable record as a civic worker. She agrees only in part with the contributor who, among other things, dealt with fish ponds. Hear her:

"I noticed in Sunday's paper that someone suggests that we do away with the fish pools in Paris. I agree with him that they should be inspected but I would not be so bold as to say they are the cause of so many mosquitoes in the city.

"San Antonio has thousands of such pools and no mosquitoes. For two summers I have spent a few weeks there in August, and never saw one. Would it not be advisable to look into the matter before condemning what has become a great asset to the civic beauty of our city?

"One might also notice that at each one of our country clubs there are thousands of mosquitoes so that one hesitates to sit in the open. Can nothing be done about this? Again I will say I did not notice any at the clubs in San Antonio.

"Please insert this in your column. It might stir up an investigation of other cities. Has Clarksville (where there are no mosquitoes) done away with all of their fish pools?"

Another contributor to this column calls attention to the utter disregard of stop signals in the residence district of Paris. In an apparent jocular vein he says "the people should advocate the removal of all these signals at all intersections of streets in the residence district as they are in the way of motorists and are likely to cause some of them to burst a tire sometime." Observed the contributor: "I saw a young lady drive over one of them recently across Lamar avenue at the rate of about 35 miles an hour."

WILL ROGERS says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., May 30.—Bands playing, soldiers marching, orators orating, telling you it's your duty to buy Liberty bonds.

Fifteen years later, no bands, no maching, no orators. Just a patriotic girl, or a broken piece of human frame trying to sell a poppy for a few cents, made by even a more unfortunate brother in one of our 55 hospitals, given 15 years to think it over. War has degenerated from the price of a Liberty bond to the price of a poppy. Six millions of these boys' regular customers are disabled this year too, and from the same war. So those that have will have to try and make up for these, by buying more.

There is only one sure way of stopping war. That is to see that every "statesman" has the same chance to reflect after it's over that these boys making the poppies have had. Yours WILL.

Secretary Hurley Lines Up With Hoover By Issuing Statement In Which He Attacks Bill By Garner

WASHINGTON, May 30. (AP) — Secretary Hurley Monday night aligned himself alongside his chief in a slashing denunciation of Speaker Garner's public works bill as a "wasteful extravagance."

Striking out vigorously at the unemployment measure which President Hoover has described as a "Pork Barrel," the secretary of war said it would substitute "wasteful extravagance for intelligent, well-balanced, productive construction."

Hurley's formal statement came as Speaker Garner whipped his bill into final shape and prepared to go before the ways and means committee Tuesday in support of it.

With both majority leader Rainey and Republican leader Snell forecasting favorable action, indi-

MEXICAN BANDIT GANG IS BLAMED IN RECENT RAIDS

Last Attempt Causes Gun Fight of 45 Minutes Duration

PRESIDIO, Tex., May 30. (AP) — Belief was expressed here Monday that an organized bandit band from Mexico was responsible for three raids in this border section within the last six months.

The last attempted robbery occurred at one of F. Seggerman's stores at Redford, 20 miles east of Presidio. Seven Mexicans, with high-powered rifles and revolvers formed the raiding party.

A. B. Ramirez, in charge of the store, was fired on when he refused to open the doors. That started a gun fight which lasted for three quarters of an hour and in which more than seventy shots were exchanged between the bandits and the storekeeper, his wife and 14-year-old son. The bandits finally retreated.

While the store and sleeping quarters were punctured with bullets, none of the Ramirez family of eight were injured.

DEED TO LIBRARY IS GIVEN CITY AT COUNCIL MEET

Formal Presentation Ceremony Will Take Place Thursday Evening

4 NEW POLICEMEN NAMED ON FORCE

Seven Officers Are Re-Appointed; Changes Are Effective June 15

Presentation of the deed to the Public Library was made to the city council Monday night by J. J. Culbertson, in order that it might be legally accepted before the formal presentation Thursday evening. The gift was accepted on motion of Alderman Ivan Smith, who expressed the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson would have as umch pleasure in making the gift as he felt sure the people of Paris would have in receiving and enjoying it.

There was no ceremony connected with the tender and reception of the deed, but Mr. Culbertson briefly stated that after nearly twelve months of work the building was practically completed and would be ready for occupancy so soon as two doors that had not arrived, were received and put in place, which he was assured would not be more than a few days.

Much Paris Material

Richard Blyth, who accompanied Mr. Culbertson to the council session, suggested that one thing Mr. Culbertson had not mentioned was that everything connected with the library that could be obtained in Paris had been bought here and that Paris labor was used in the construction. Mr. Culbertson then briefly enlarged upon this, more especially as to some of the special library furniture which he had been told could be made only by factories specializing in that line. He had tendered the work to Paris makers and the result was equipment as good as any made anywhere in the world—a result of which he was very proud.

MOVE FOR SALES TAX BILL NOW CONTEMPLATED

Would Be Sought In Addition to Billion Dollar Bill Pending

ADVOCATES TOLD 'FIGHT IS FUTILE'

Harrison Moves to Secure Money Needed In Present Masure

WASHINGTON, May 30. (AP)—President Hoover summoned senate Democratic leaders and economy committee members to the White House Monday night to disclose new estimates calling for an additional $200,000,000 in taxes.

A move for a supplemental revenue measure providing possibly for a general sales tax in addition to the pending billon dollar bill about to go through the senate is contemplated.

Reed Informs Senate

Senator Reed (R., Pa.) after a late day White House conference which also included Secretary Mills and Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, informed the senate of the revised estimates.

His declaration was given to the senate just as a petition was laid down pledging 55 members—a substantial majority — in opposition to the sales tax.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, the Democratic tax leader, in presenting the petition, told the senate sales tax advocates that a "fight is futile."

Moves to Supply Need

He then moved to make up the $50,000,000 needed in the pending revenue measure to meet the budget estimates originally presented by Secretary Mills by restoration of higher income rates.

The income tax schedule of Senator Connally, (D., Texas) providing normal income rates of four per cent on the first $4,000 and eight per cent on income over $4,000 with a maximum surtax of 55 per cent will be voted upon Tuesday.

It is expected to yield $90,000,000 additional revenue and bring the total of the bill to $1,050,000,000. Adoption was predicted.

Senator Reed issued a warning of runs on American gold with a possible gold embargo and forcing the United States off the gold standard. This brought sharp retorts.

La Follette Rises

Senator La Follette, (R., Wis.) said "The senator from Pennsylvania has made three speeches which whether they were calculated to do so or not have had the effect of doing all that is in the power of the senator from Pennsylvania to create both a foreign and domestic run on the American dollar.

"I say it is nothing short of striking a blow in this critical moment for the administration and the senator from Pennsylvania to arise and make a speech of the character which he has made this afternoon."

But for advocates of the sales tax, La Follette said, the senate could have completed its tax bill Monday night.

Lewis Takes Hand

Earlier Senator Lewis, (D., Ill.) referring to Reed's remarks about withdrawals of gold asked "who are these financiers of the United States who are sending out the gold of this country in large sums of money."

"What of their patriotism" he inquired.

Lewis said if Reed referred to ear-marked gold, that does not belong to the United States anyway and the news of its withdrawal should not be used in a way that would "create the terror that brings on panic."

If it is American gold, he said, he wanted to know the names of the gold exporters.

OIL PRORATION ORDERS IN ETEX FIELD ATTACKED

Court Hears Charges That Railroad Commission's Regulation Is Wasteful

HOUSTON, May 30. (AP)—The Texas state railroad commission's proration orders in East Texas were attacked here Monday in an omnibus suit before a three judge federal court.

It was litigation by which it was hoped to end litigation, so far as Texas courts are concerned, in the long and stormy history of regulated oil production in the mighty east Texas oil field.

The same court previously had held, several months ago, that Governor R. S. Sterling had exceeded his authority in maintaining martial law production restrictions over the properties of oil operators who sued for, and obtained, a temporary injunction against him.

Monday a half dozen suits consolidated into one attacking the validity of railroad commission proration, which was resumed when proration by military executive order went out, came before the court.

Trans-Pacific Flight Attempt Of Nathan Browne Ends Suddenly As Ship Dives Into Water At Seattle

Browne and his volunteer assistant in refueling operations, Frank Brooks, were fished out of the water by a party in a sea sled. Browne had a dislocated shoulder. Brooks was unhurt, although he complained he 'hadn't intended to take a bath until Saturday."

"We both left the plane at the same time," Brooks said. "We could not help it. When the wing tore off, we were left sitting almost in the open air.

"It rained plane all around us as we settled in our parachutes to the water. We left the plane at an altitude of about 500 feet and the

NATION'S WAR DEAD HONORED IN CAPITAL

Hoover Sends Wreath to Tomb of Unknown Soldier

WASHINGTON, May 30. (AP) — The nation's war dead Monday received the tribute and homage of its leaders and of thousands of persons who participated in the capital's Memorial Day ceremonies.

The press of public affairs kept President Hoover at his desk and, contrary to custom, he took no personal part in the ceremonies. He sent wreaths by his military aide, Colonel Campbell Hodges, to the tomb of Woodrow Wilson at the National Cathedral and the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington National cemetery.

Among the tributes at the unknown soldier's tomb was one laid there by a delegation of German and Austrian war veterans now in America.

Observance of Memorial Day in Paris began with the Sunday morning service at the First Methodis church, where through arrangement of Winfield F. Brown post No. 30 of the American Legion, the principal address was made by Gabe P. Allen of Dallas. Members of the American Legion and auxiliary entered the church in a body and occupied spectilly reserved sections of pews toward the front the auditorium. The pastor, the Rev. Harold G. Cooke, presided.

The speaker, introduced by Judge George P. Blackburn in whose home he was a guest here, made an address benefitting the occasion citing the sacrifice made by the nations' soldier dead, and recalling the horrors which would inevitably be re-enacted in the event of another conflict. He adjured his hearers to remember the service rendered them by the men who "went West", and to carry on for the same ideals for which they BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, May 30. (AP)—The palace of King Alexander and five other strategic spots in the capital were bombed Monday.

The bomb thrown at the palace injured a passerby.

LUBBOCK THEATERS DAMAGED BY BOMBS

Law Enforcement Forces of City Working On Clues

LUBBOCK, May 30. (AP)—Lubbock's law enforcement agencies were at work on promising clues Monday night as they followed leads which they hoped might uncover perpetrators of the Memorial Day bombings of two theater buildings almost simultaneously Monday morning. An attempt to loot the safe of a third theater, containing about $200, was not connected with the bombings, police said.

The two explosions, the first one wrecking the rear of the two floors of the first building at 3 o'clock and the second doing less extensive damage back of and beneath the stage of the other building from three to five minutes later, marked the open advent of racketeering methods in Lubbock.

Explosives sunk in the well's cellar and set off electrically by M. M. and Floyd Kinley, noted oil fire fighters, turned the trick as fas as the 46-hour blaze was concerned. Crews then found the well's master gate undamaged and closed it in.

BRUENING, CABINET STEPS ASIDE MONDAY

No Indication That Hitler Will Assume Direct Power

BERLIN, May 30. (AP)—Dr. Heinrich Bruening and his cabinet stepped aside Monday, and the nazis of Adolf Hitler hailed the resignation with the triumphant slogan: "Our hour has come."

But when President Paul Von Hindenburg accepted the resignation of the two-year-old cabinet there was no indication that the fascist Hitler would step directly into power but it appeared that perhaps the next chancellor would be a man whom they could tolerate.

Then, after the Lausanne conference on June 16, there was some talk that the nazis might assume power—but authorities agreed this was "another question."

DEED TO LIBRARY

Ben White, John Wilburn, Newt Baker, $100.

The first four named are new men, replacing F. F. Floyd, John Hewerton, Will Maddox and Sterling Stamper. Aldermen Baker, Enloe and Harris voted for confirmation and Aldermen Smith and Garrett voted no. The changes become effective June 15.

Library Board Confirmed

The Public Library board heretofore submitted was confirmed by the council. Members are J. J. Culbertson, Richard Blyth, Thomas Justiss. Mrs. J. C. White and Mrs. Morgan Alexander. Mrs. Edgar Wright's name had been submitted but finding that she could not serve, the name of Mrs. Alexander was substituted.

The mayor announced that members of the council and some city officials and their wives were invited to sit with the board at the ceremonies incident to the library presentation Thursday evening.

The mayor reported that B. F. Leigh, a truck grower, had asked for refund of a $5 license he had paid as he believed it was illegally collected and the matter was referred to the finance committee. The mayor requested the sanitary committee to inspect conditions at the rest station on the Market square and make such recommendations as found necessary. He also reported that he had had the Plaza clock repaired as instructed.

Other Matters

The city engineer asked and was given more time on getting bids for sidewalk abutting Bywaters park on South Main street.

Water committee recommended allowing hay to be cut on 10 acres of bermuda grass and three acres of Johnson grass on south side of Lake Crook, the city to receive half of the hay, delivered in the barn and this was adopted.

Alderman Smith called attention to a bad place in the street at Twenty-sixth and Washington and it was noted to be repaired.

Alderman Garrett reported that a light ordered on April 11 to be placed at Twentieth and Shiloh had not been installed and the engineer was instructed to have this done.

Alderman Enloe called attention to careless parking which took no account of the white pavement lines, and asked that the marshal insist on the lines being observed. Marshal Cothran agreed to this and asked the aldermen to be careful themselves of all traffic regulations, as he had been criticised for arresting some people and not others, or so charged and that he would be unable to make any distinctions between people who violated the ordinances.

At The Grand

Showing at the Grand today and tomorrow.

A Continental film star takes her place overnight beside the luminaries of Hollywood, and a comparatively unknown director scales the heights to stand alongside the great as a result of their work in a single picture—"The Office Girl," which comes to the Grand Theatre today.

The newest star is lovely, blonde Renate Muller, long a stage and screen favorite abroad. The director is Victor Saville, whom critics abroad, where the picture still is a long-run sensation, have compared with Ernest Lubitsch. "The Office Girl" is said to carry fully as much charm, sheer delight and heart-warming entertainment as either of Lubitsch's great comedies with music—"The Love Parade" and "The Smiling Lieutenant."

Member George Bullah, dapper little lefthander who pitched for Paris at one time? Sure you do. Well, Georgie pitching semi-pro ball Sunday at Gainesville registered a no-hit, no-run game, which is some pitching, even in an Epworth league.

Artie Shires, since getting back in the game for Boston, has been doing big things in a big way. Artie cracked out home runs on two consecutive days and has been a power to the pennant aspirations of the Boston Braves. Burt Whitman, sports writer for the Boston Herald, says Whattaman is the most popular ball player in Boston.

Now the story is going the rounds that Babe Ruth and a syndicate is to buy the Boston Red Sox. The Big Bam is ready to make the purchase, provided some one else furnishes the money—he admits that fact. It was at Boston that the Babe first earned fame—fortune and a big appetite.

"I dunno about that Boston club," the Babe said. "Quinn wants to sell, but he wants too much for something he hasn't got—meaning that the Red Sox need some eight or ten ball players before it can be labeled a ball club." Should the Babe really take the Sox it would be a big break for Jack Russell and Danny MacFayden, These two comprise the ball club.

Bill Klem, who has withstood thirty years of big league umpiring, was heard in a news reel here last week. "I never have missed a play or called one wrong," Bill told folks that heard and saw the reel. Just to show that he was "educated." Bill, in telling of all the plays he had called defied any one to tell him where he was wrong.

"Ask any of them thirty"—and here Bill showed his education by going back and saying, "I mean world series ball games, and ask any of them—beg pardon, I mean those ball players that took part, and they'll tell you I never miss 'em."

And over in New York Jawn McGraw, boss of the Giants will tell you that Bill never called one right unless it was an accident. The McGraw-Clem feud dates back for many years. John don't like Bill and don't hesitate to say so, and Bill goes just as far and says just as much about McGraw.

Rogers Hornsby, whom all will admit was some shakes as an infielder in days gone by, went into consultation with Manager Hornsby the other day and decided that the Chicago Cubs needed more punch in the outfield, so he placed Manager Hornsby in the outfield to add batting power. If player Hornsby gets hit on the head by a fly ball Manager Hornsby will not bawl the player out.

Bruce Caldwell, former Yale star, and for the past several years manager and owner of the Hartford ball club, sold himself to the big leagues four times—twice to Cleveland, once to Washington and later to Brooklyn. The first three times he didn't make the grade, but he is now doing big things for Brooklyn, and probably enjoying the money he made by the four sales.

And the race they are staging in the Texas league is a hummer, viewed from any angle. So far, however, none of the clubs has been able to dislodge the Beaumont club from the top of the heap Either Baker has a whole lot better ball club than the critics thought he had or they are playing over their heads. Whatever it is the kids are on top of the heap by a healthy margin, and seem destined to stay there.

At the Plaza

Barbara Stanwyck in "So Big" is the attraction opening tomorrow at the Plaza theatre and from advance accounts it seems extremely likely that the coming of this particular picture will stand out as one of the really big events of the present season.

To begin with, there's Barbara Stanwyck herself—a very comely and talented young lady whose name alone is "plenty box office" as show people say. Her role in "So Big," as Selina Peake, the girl whose story from childhood to old age is the central theme of the plot, is the finest bit of work that Barbara has yet accomplished on the screen.

And then the cast of "So Big" in addition to Barbara Stanwyck is worth consideration by discriminating movie patrons. George Brent is leading man — that handsome and stalwart young Irishman who has brought a new style in heroes to Hollywood. You can sum up George Brant by saying that he is a he-man without being hardboiled —and he has a rich store of Irish charm. Then there's little Dickie Moore, five years old and already a screen star. Dickie has already "stolen" more pictures from famous screen celebrities than any other player in Hollywood, according to those who keep tabs on such matters. Bette Davis is in the cast too—a blonde and vivacious miss who is rising rapidly in the cinematic sky. And there's Mae Madison and Hardie Albright and Robert Warwick and Arthur Stone and Earle Fox and Alan Hale and Dorothy Peterson and about twenty more, making up one of the strongest casts ever assembled by a Hollywood studio.

Love For Two, Mystery For Three!

Yankee Netters Rout Australians

Opening the second week of play Mrs. Moody, who regained the women's doubles championship with Elizabeth Ryan last week after a year's absence from the tournament, paired with the young New Yorker Monday to defeat Jean Borotra and Josane Sigart, 7-5, 6-2, in a semi-final match. DON'T PICK THE POLITICIANS

MUCH speculation was indulged in and some wild-eyed guesses evoked from editorial writers in Texas when it was seen that the name of Senator Morris Sheppard was omitted from the delegation named to cast the vote of Texas in the Chicago Democratic convention. Had they waited twenty-four hours they would have been spared the necessity of comment, for at that time Sam Rayburn stated that the Senator's name was omitted at Mr. Sheppard's request.

Just why it should be considered necessary to make congressmen, senators and state officers delegates to either a state or a national convention it is hard to understand. Casual thought would convince anyone that the natural thing for such delegates would be to do what would advance their political interests, rather than the interests of the party as a whole.

When a man has been honored by tre people with a national or state office he should stand aside for someone not drawing salary from the government to act as delegate to formulate and express the will of the party. Texas has plenty of men who are not filling offices who are competent to go as delegates to conventions, and they could and would act there untrammeled by any thought of what effect the platform or nominees might have on their political fortunes.

The News does not advocate a law to forbid office holders going as delegates to conventions, for we have too many laws now, especially those concerning elections; but it does submit the idea to the Democracy that it would be well to omit office holders in future from delegations to conventions of any sort.

COUNTRY HOLDS ITS OWN

NOT everybody may have noted it, but it is a fact that three of the six prizes in the baby show held in connection with the Made In Paris exposition went to babies whose parents live in the country.

And these awards were not on the basis of pulchritude or "cuteness" as used to be the yardstick by which show babies were judged, but they were made from cold figures set down by physicians and trained nurses, based on the physical development and perfection of the child.

The fashion once in vogue of pitying the children of the rural districts because they did not have the privileges and opportunities of the city child is gone forever. The children of the country are just as healthy, and just as well cared for, even better in many cases, than those of the towns. Their parents have taken advantage of the information given by county health nurses, sanitarians, dietitians, home demonstration agencies and the magazines and newspapers, to feed and care for their children in the proper way. It is probable that they have even given such matters more attention than many city dwellers. And the result is that their children are being given the start in life that is the right of every child.

And this is matter for congratulation, and a challenge to the urban parents to see to it that their children, too, are given attention to that will make them fit to take up the burdens of life when their time comes. When children of rural residents can win half the prizes in competition it is up to the city parents to use every effort to prevent that ratio being increased. The rescit of this competition is to wipe out one at least of the differences that some finical people have asserted existed between town and country. There are no differences—it is doubtful if there ever were any.

WATCH THE LAWMAKERS

PARIS has been visited by one candidate for governor, and while he had a small crowd to hear him he made a bid for votes and will probably get some in the Democratic primary election in July.

It appeared to be a typical candidate-for-governor speech, with especial pleadings thought by the candidate to have an appeal to the "common people" though just why there should be an appeal to a class rather than to the whole body of the citizens is one of those mysteries only a politician can explain—and they have never done so.

Mr. Frakes made the statement that every past governor of Texas has come out of office a rich man, which appears to have been simply a statement unsupported by any sort of proof or even any offered evidence. The inference must be, in view of the fact that the governor's salary is only $4,000 a year that every Texas governor has received money or other articles of value to which he was not entitled, and The News does not believe this to be true.

On all-fours with many other candidates, now and heretofore, the candidate stated that if elected he would abolish all superfluous offices in the state government in the interest of economy. This of course, he can not do, and if he is qualified to be governor of Texas he must know that he can not do it. Had he said he would recommend to the legislature that such offices be abolished or consolidated with others, he could have expected some support, but even the least informed voter knows that the governor does not create nor can he abolish offices.

If the people of Texas are wise they will give little attention to claims, promises, threats or other machinations of candidates for governor, but they will give a great deal to candidates for the house and senate and will require definite expressions from them before election.

In Sails and in Anchors, in Storms and in Calms.

In Deserts and in Forests, in Mistletoe and in towering Sequoia, in Dust and in Dew.

In all these we must believe, because all these things are a part of living.

We must believe in Smiles and in Tears, in Youth and in Old Age, in Pulsing Life and— yes, we must believe in DEATH!

We may reject none of these things, because none of us know the secret of the magic formula of man's adventure on this flying ball called Earth.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

THE railroads appear to be having hard sledding nowadays. Private automobiles have cut into their pasenger receipts; the trucks have taken a great portion of their freight tonnage, and in many cases they are put to it to find enough money to keep operating. Some of them are being given loans by the government, though there does not appear to be any reason to believe that their business will increase enough to provide the money to repay.

The railroads seem to be one of the few things that either did not look ahead far enough, or were unable when the time came, to adapt themselves to changing conditions. They apparently seemed to think that there would never be any improvement on their method of transportation, or reduction of costs. They had supplanted the stage coach and to a large extent had replaced the river steamboats, and laughed at those industries as they withered away, but now they find themselves in much the same fix.

One reason the railroads, in my opinion, get no more public symphthy than is given them now is that in their heyday they paid little attention to complaints from the public. The favored few, big shippers and men high in public positions, were about all who could get the ear of the management with a request that would be heeded, and the public took the attitude of repaying in kind and began to swat the roads in courts with damage claims and every other possible sort of retaliation.

One of these methods was that of ridicule, which was general and popular some years ago, though it got little result at the time because the roads were then secure in their monopoly and paid no attention. One of the most famous was the name of "Angel Maker" given the Houston and Texas Central 50 years ago by Bill Sterrett of the Dallas News, when wrecks were of almost daily occurrence on that line, from Galveston to Denison and it resulted, or was a factor at least, in the road making repairs to its bed and equipment.

The branch of the Cotton Belt from Wolfe City to Sherman 40 years ago was always referred to by the irreverent of Sherman as the "Rotten" Belt. The line across Louisiana, the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific, was paraphrased by the use of its initials to make "Very Slow and Poky," and when the Texas Midland trains would come into Paris after a rain had softened the track in Sulphur bottom, with mud splashed halfway up the sides of the coaches, the boys dubbed it the Texas "Mudland", and the name as well as the mud stood for some time.

But now the public does not appear to care enough about the rail roads to give them nicknames. Unless some way is found by which they can pull themselves out of the rut they will have to pay lower salaries to the magnates and depend on government loans or subsidiesto provide the most of the income.

Life's Darkest Moment

THE Sacred Eye

By BRUCE E. GRIGGS

A Story of Mystery and Love in The South Seas

"Livingston, huh? So he had trouble remembering the name, did he?" I joked at Tom.

"For one thing I discovered it was Utato trying to cut those bars last night," he said.

"Did you get any clue as to where the beautiful Whitney stands in this line-up?"

"Nothing definite. I can't give it to you word for word, but here is about what was said there over the air: Livingston wanted to know if Utato had gotten the log book yet. Utato replied that it was in the trunk in the store room and that he had tried to cut the bars last night but that the noise awakened us so he couldn' finish."

"Nothing said about Pauo?"

"I'm coming to that. Here is as close as I can remember the words: 'Livingston suggests you might get keys from Pauo, but be sure to make it look good. How is Pauo lining up with the guests?' To this Utato replied 'OK'. The last thing that came through was an order to 'call the boat' if anything new developed."

We found the girls down by the boat house talking to the old native who was in charge of the boats. Together we walked out to the end of the pier and seated ourselves on the edge. Then we told them of the latest flashes.

"We know now for sure where to place Utato, but there is some question about the Whitney girl," Tom finished.

"Well," Pilly exploded. "She is such a perfect honey, I'd hate to thing she was 'crossing' us."

"What I don't understand is this:" Ione said. "She has seen that book, and she probably knows she could look at it again by simply asking for it. Why should she want to make it look like robbery?"

"That one isn't among the answers in the back of the book," I told her.

"There is some sort of hokus-pokus going on," Tom stated quietly. "The best thing we can do is keep our mouths shut and our eyes open."

"What about telling Larry all we have found out?" Ione asked.

"He's pretty crazy about Pauo—with her most of the time and he might let something slip, or he might blow up if we tried to tell him," Tom said thoughtfully. "Anyway we haven't anything but a lot of half-baked suspicions to go on as far as she is concerned. Let him be happy, and we'll do the watching."

"That's sounds reasoning," I seconded. I turned to the girls: "Now that we know for sure that Utato is after the log, you girls better get busy with the copying of that code. Something deep here. It's in that code."

A score of naked native youngsters were playing around the shore of the lagoon, their smooth brown bodies flashing as they leaped in and out of the water. Some of the older ones were diving from the pier.

"Those kids swim like fish," Tom said watching them.

"Look at those three and four-year-olds larruping around there. Apparently they learn to swim about the time they learn to walk," I commented. "Water is as natural an element for them as land."

Back toward the shore the palace showed the pink of its coral through the living, velvety, green of the rich island foliage. Seaward, beyond the tranquil blue of the lagoon, the surf thundered constantly along the reef in running plumes of white. Across a dozen miles of glittering water Tarea's peaks towered, connected in some strange way with our puzzle.

"Look who is barging along," Pilly called. Glancing up we discovered Pauo and Larry coming toward us along the pier, Holmes, dapper as ever in fresh whites, his cork helmet cocked at a jaunty angle; Pauo in a flaming native pareu, bare shoulders gleaming like ivory, and her blue-black hair blowing in the trade wind.

"Get all your things unpacked?" she asked.

"All settled now," Ione told her. "Where have you been?"

"Visiting Ling Fat, Pauo's Celestial friend who keeps the store up at the village," Larry told her.

"Come on up and we'll have something cool to drink before lunch," Pauo suggested. "After siesta, if you like, we'll go koperu fishing. I doubt if you have ever seen anything just like it."

A couple hours later, then, refreshed by lunch and a nap, we were at the boat house, where we met Potii, a handsome six-fot savage with the lithe, active body of a boy, which belied a heavy shock of white hair. A big outrigger canoe was waiting for us by the runway of the boat house.

"Fishing," Pauo told us, "plays an important part in the lives of folks living on the smaller atols, where the food supply is limited largely to cocoanuts and sea food, with an occasional pig or chicken. Potii, when he was young lived on one of these tiny islands, and he knows all the fishing tricks. Don't you, Potii?" she called to called to him.

Thus addressed the man showed even, white teeth in a smile and nodded.

"He understands English, but he doesn't speak it so well," she told us.

It was when we reached the fishing grounds out in the lagoon near the reef, htat we made the acquaintance of the water glass. This is a box with a glass bottom which is dipped down a few inches below the surface, thus eliminating any refraction of light from the waves or surface movement. One places his face at the open end and the bottom, fathoms down, stands out clearly, with its gloriously colored coral beds.

Potii picked up half a cocoanut and shredded some of the white meat with his knife. Then having drawns several great lungfulls of air, finally filled his chest to capacity and slipped overside, letting himself down by a rope fastened to the thwarts and slipped under his arms.

"Now watch closely," Pauo ordered.

Through the water glasses, which Pauo had passed around we could see him perfectly. He put a piece of the white cocoanut meat in his mouth, chewed it and blew out fine clouds of chum, which drifted about in gentle eddies.

"He'll kill himself if he doesn't come up for air," Ione said. He had been under a long time.

"Don't worry," Pauo told us. "He is an old pearl diver and their lungs are wonderful things."

Finally he came up for a fresh supply of cocoanut meat. He had made several trips down when finally we saw the fish begin to appear. First in twos and threes and then it seemed, in schools. Carefully they swam around him at first and then growing bolder almost snatched the fragments as they came clouding from his mouth. Gradually he drew himself toward the surface, shortening the rope.

Now his head broke water. There came that whistling sound which we were later to learn to associate with these long dives, when the lungs seem to scream for air. Taking a fresh supply of air, he reached for his fishing tackle—an 18-inch twig with a bit of double sewing cotton on the end, to which was fastened a small barbless hook. On the hook he fastened a bit of cocoanut meat.

Now he submerged again and the school of eager fish fearlessly swam around him. Then he held the bait under the nose of the nearest Koperu. As the fish grabbed it, Potii flipped his arm with a swift motion above the surface and threw the fish wriggling into the bottom of the canoe.

Then while we watched in amazement this rapid flipping of the arm continued—and each flip brought another fish to flop in the boat. Finally dozens of them had been captured in rapid order.

"Why!" Pilly exploded. "I never saw anything like that in my life. It was worth a trip own here for this alone. OOOoooo!"

"Lots eat!" Potii said with a wide smile as he pulled himself into the canoe and picked up his paddle. And as we move through the lagoon back to the boat house, and en route expressed our astonishment in various terms.

Pauo smiled happily. "Yes," she said, "we have a few tricks down here that folk have to watch to appreciate."

The fish, a small variety of mackerel, formed the piece de resistance of an excellent dinner.

"You have heard of milk-fed chicken," Larry laughed, "but I'll bet this is the first time you ever heard of cocoanut-fed fish."

"If you'll get up early in the morning we'll go out and watch Havia lasoo a shark and bring him up," Pauo promised. But as events turned out we weren't to watch this daring feat during the early hours. Instead we were to watch a battle which we were never to forget, but in which the sharks were to play a leading role.

Diet and Health

By Logan Clendening, M. D., Author of "The Human Body"

There are several books which can be recommended for the guidance of the expectant mother:

Dr. Clendening

"The Prospective Mother," by Dr. J. Morris Slemons (published by D. Appleton & Co.).

"Approaching Motherhood," by Dr. George L. Brodhead (published by Paul Hoeber, Inc.).

Either of these books answers the questions every woman naturally asks during this period. They explain the nature of the processes and the changes the body is going through in a clear and sympathetic and tactful fashion.

It is perfectly proper for a woman under such circumstances to want to understand such things in order to help her physician intelligently. But most of the subjects are of so intimate and personal a character they cannot be properly taken up in a newspaper article read by young and old. Therefore, it is best for the mother to have one of these books for herself.

The teeth during the period of expectancy should be looked after very carefully. A visit to the dentist once every three months is not too often. There is an old saying, "For every child a tooth," but this is not necessarily true in these modern days. It is probable that the demands on the mother's body for calcium to build the baby's bones cause her teeth to be attacked if there is not enough calcium in the diet.

Another reason advanced for the tendency of teeth to decay at this time is the delicate condition of the stomach resulting in the regurgitation of acid stomach juice into the mouth and getting into small tooth cavities promoting more erosion.

Daily bathing is of even more importance than during normal health. Elimination of waste products is very important, and the mother's body must do it for two. The skin is one of the organs of elimination, and to perform its functions well should be kept exceptionally clean and fresh. A tepid shower or tub rather than an extremely hot or cold bath is advised.

Clothes should be loose, but need not be ugly or uncomfortable. The French word for pregnancy, "enciente" means, literally, unbounded, and that is all the physician requires. The expectant mother need not resemble Mahatma Gandhi.

My New York

By James Aswell

NEW YORK.—The run of the town:

There is always that contingent of dapper Times Square youths who keep a couple of laps ahead of the styles . . . They are legion and they are perennial. . . . When bell-bottom trousers were about to come in, they appeared, looking as if they'd just stepped into a couple of bass horns . . . When the long-collared "Barrymore" shirt collars arrived, the Rialto sheiks paraded with collar points almost down to their coon vest buttons . . . Their 'coon coats are always twice as puffy, twice as beaverish as those worn by the collegiates.

Now they have embraced the newest wrinkle in haberdashery with zest and daring . . . Not long ago the bright lights stores began to offer neckties embroidered in enormous script with the legend: "WE WANT BEER." . . . The manikin lads display bright-hued scarves with the aforesaid trick inscription, but they go around with coats and vests unbuttoned so that all may see, and in addition many of them display heavy replicas of foaming steins suspended from watch chains.

But while we're on the subject of this curious and swaggering tribe, it should be noted that while they precede the mode by several weeks, they also continue to improve upon each fashion in cumulative waves of exaggeration, several months after the vogue has passed.

EXIT THE HICK.

All of which brings forcibly to mind the total disappearance of a Manhattan type made famous—or rather notorious—a generation ago in song and story . . . I refer to the gaping countryman, outlandishly dressed, who directed the attention of his red-woolen stocking-ed wife to the wonders of the sky-scraper belt. . . . This genus must have disappeared utterly before my day; certainly it is not to be encountered anywhere at this writing.

Instead, a barker for a Chinatown tour confided to me the other evening his method of selecting out-of-towners from the Times Square influx. . . . He rejects the strollers who seem too awed by and interested in the Mazda jungle; they are probably New Yorkers down from the Bronx for a rare whirl. . . . As objects of his spiel, he picks the fashionably dressed, urban men and women.

"The flashy dressers mostly live within a mile of here," he whispered. . . . "It's the dignified dames and gents who are likely to give me a tumble. They've been here before, but sometimes they've skipped Chinatown."

RENAISSANCE ORIENTALE.

Incidentally, the Chink whoopee salons and restaurants report a surprising pickup in business, dating, for no apparent reason, from just a few weeks ago. . . . Nightly troupes of sight-seers, many of them in evening garb, descend upon the Pell and Mott street rialtos to disport themselves along the Incense Belt.

I have never seen a Chinese speakeasy. . . . I am told that it is possible in some of the restaurants to purchase, when properly identified, so-called "Chinese whisky," a potion guaranteed to make apple-jack taste like ginger ale . . . There's at least one Chinese dance hall, patronized, to an astounding degree, by effete whites.

Next week, no doubt, the tide of night like will suddenly swirl, eddy and flow back uptown, perhaps once more into a Harlem of late increasingly deserted by the sophisticates, perhaps into some other native quarter. . . . The Greek, Hungarian and Germanic quarters are due, in this opinion, for booms. . . . Each has its unique divertissements, waiting only to be discovered by the more original of the top-hat contingent.

PERSONAL ADVICE

By Virginia Lee

The next letter is not addressed to me, but to the girl, "Wiggles," whose boy friend had left her and was going with another girl, to her great grief.

"Dear Wiggles: They say that misery likes company, darlin', so let me tell you that you aren't the only girl who was 'ditched' for someone else.

"I went with a boy for five months. I loved him a lot and still do. I'm a brunette and he threw me over for a blonde. And she lives on the same street I do. Can you imagine how I feel going by her house every night and seeing his car in her driveway—when it used to be in mine?

"But Miss Lee is quite right about grieving over him. Don't do it. Men are just a bunch of conceited things. He is liable to brag about it. And—pardon me for advising you—don't write to him. I did and I'm sorry. It only makes matters worse, and he will only keep the letter as a reminder that he is a 'great, big irresistible hero.'

"If, as you say, the girl isn't nice, he won't stick to her very long. He will probably get over the infatuation. I haven't even this consolation. My 'rival' is very nice, and where I am merely a little pretty, she is beautiful. She dresses lovely, and even I can't help but admit that she is prettier than I am.

"I go out with lots of fellows. I laugh and have a good time. Just try it. We girls believe in fellows too much. Since I broke up with my boy friend I don't believe one word anyone tells me, and although it isn't half as dramatic, I don't get hurt any more.

"So please don't grieve over him, honey. We girls must get it into our silly, romantic heads not to let the boys make fools out of us.

"ANNE."

And what a peach of a kid you turned out to be, Anne, with your philosophy and all. Just a sporting little kid. I don't believe that the boys make the girls suffer much more—if any—than the girls trifle with the boys, but it behooves everyone to learn the lesson that it is bad policy to wear one's heart on one's sleeve and to believe quite all the pretty things one hears.

Mrs. R. writes to "Despondent Husband" to tell him that there are a number of firms who loan money from whom he could borrow enough to save his home.

I would add, however, that Despondent Husband should, if he deals with such people, be very sure they are doing a legitimate business, charging a legal rate of interest, and not unscrupulous parties who may bring him more trouble than help.

Lesson-Sermon at Scientist Church

The lesson-sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, was "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced."

Proverbs 14:22 furnished the golden text: "Do they not err that devise evil? but mercy and truth shall be to them that devise good."

Included in the lesson - sermon was the following verse from the Bible (Revelation 12:10): "And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ; for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night."

The service also embraced these citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy—pages 223, 380:

"Marvels, calamities, and sin will much more abound as truth urges upon mortals its resisted claims; but the awful daring of sin destroys sin, and foreshadows the triumph of truth . . . Nothing but the power of Truth can prevent the fear of error, and prove man's dominion over error."

cations are that the bill calling for $2,309,000,000 will be sent to the senate next week. Its fate there is in doubt.

Secretary Hurley, as active director of army engineer projects, would be charged under the bill with expenditures of $537,525,257, in addition to moneys to be appropriated under the regular rivers and harbors program for the coming fiscal year.

His statement was prepared late in the day after a conference with Major General Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, and Brigadier General George B. Pillsbury, assistant to Brown. The two generals are the Federal government's two principal advisers on rivers and harbors and flood control works.

Hurley said the president in sponsoring the acceleration of public works to aid employment had confined these works to a "reasonable capacity" of the Federal government to handle.

"To create unproductive jobs beyond the capacity of the government to pay," he added, "or to construct public works without legitimate returns to the American people who foot the bill is wasteful extravagance."

He said projects speeded up under the president's program were necessary and "without any taint of the pork barrel."

Hurley cited that under the war department appropriation bill recently passed by the house, the army's appropriation for next year was $84,000,000 below that of the current year, adding that the department itself had suggested the greater portions of the reductions.

Under the Garner bill the secretary said the war department would be directed to spend during the coming year more than $500,000,000 on many of the same projects that the house recently excluded.

Speaker Garner will take an unusual course in going before the committee in support of the bill providing another $1,000,000,000 for the reconstruction finance corporation, $100,000,000 for direct relief, and a $1,209,000,000 public building and waterway construction program.

chutes opened about 100 feet before we lit."

Brooks said the wing was torn off in a steep dive caused when the weighted nozzle of the gasoline hose dangling from the refueling plane above caught in the stabilizer of Browne's plane and lifted the tail and smashed the rudder assembly.

Browne was clinging to wreckage when he was picked up some distance from where the fuselage of the plane dropped into the deep water.

It was Browne's second narrow escape from death in two days. Sunday an oil leak in his motor developed after he had flown several hundred miles toward his goal.

Blinded by hot oil, Browne managed to maneuver to a higher altitude until he could recover his vision. When he saw how much oil he was losing he dumped most of his gasoline and returned here.

It was only upon his return here that he discovered that he had broken a stabilizer wire in grazing a tree on the take-off.

Fliers here expressed the opinion the tail assembly would have been shaken off before Browne possibly could have reached Tokyo, making his plane unmanageable.

The perilous takeoff Sunday decided Browne in favor of mid-air refueling and a cabin plane hurriedly was fitted up with extra tanks for the attempt Monday.

Due to Browne's failure to complete the flight, the $30,000 prize fund raised by Seattle aviation enthusiasts five years ago will be returned to its donors.

One condition of the prize fund stipulates the flight must be completed by midnight of June 1. Browne had only a few hours to spare in his quest for the goal. Unfavorable winds had held him on the ground here the past week.

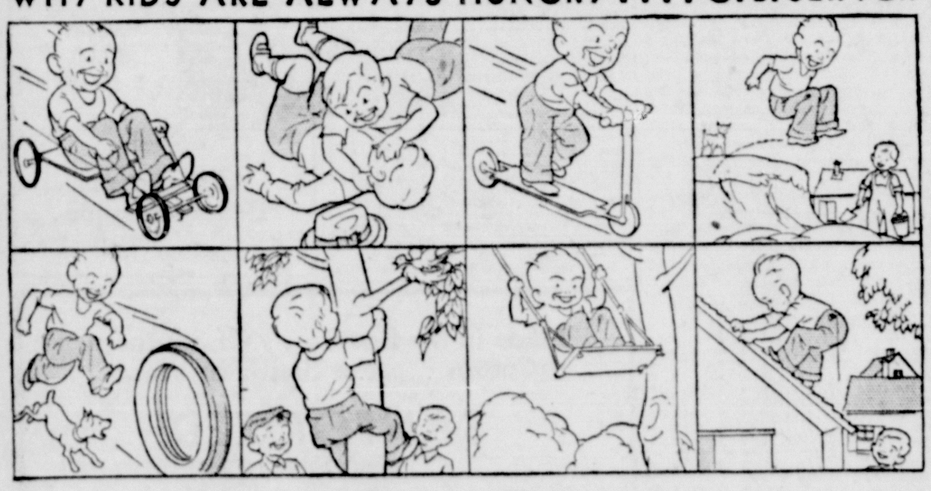
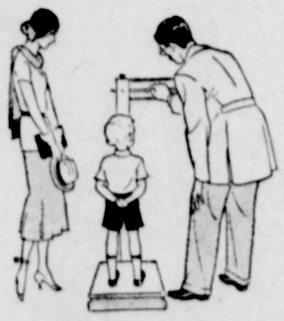
WHY KIDS ARE ALWAYS HUNGRY . . . . O. B. SERVER



CAN A CHILD BE UNDER-NOURISHED



ON THREE SQUARE MEALS A DAY?

YES! . . . SAY NOTED AUTHORITIES WHO RECOMMEND MID-MEAL SWEETS

Three meals a day may do for an adult, but it falls far short for a kid. These youngsters burn up energy at a fast and furious rate. They spend as much as they get from a meal in a couple of hours at play. That's why they have no reserve supply. That's why they collapse from sheer exhaustion. That's why they beg for a "snack." Don't ignore their need. Replenish energy quickly; not with rich food and solid sweets, but with cold, sparkling, flavory Dr. Pepper which comes to the rescue right now. This is in line with the opinion of noted diet experts. Among them, Dr. Woods Hutchinson recommends sugar as a mid-meal emergency ration for all children and active adults. Moderately used in a cold sweet drink, it supplies needed new energy in instantly usable form. It's expensive and troublesome to make fruit drinks each time a child cries for sweets. But Dr. Pepper is ready-made; properly balanced; easy to keep and serve. The sugar in it is invert; practically pre-digested. It rushes right into the blood. . . . . .

FREDDIE FRAME WINS 500 MILE AUTO CLASSIC

INDIANAPOLIS, May 30. (AP)—Freddie Frame, Los Angeles, roared to victory in 20th international 500-mile automobile race over the Indianapolis speedway Monday, leaving a string of broken records in the wake of his tiny gray-painted eight-cylinder racer.

Frame, a 37-year old driver with 10 years of racing experience smashed all existing records for the 500-mile race when he bounced his little racer over the finishing line. He covered the 500 miles in 4:48:03.79 to average 104.144 miles an hour, breaking the former record of 101.13 established by Peter De Paolo in winning the 1925 classic.

Wilcox Second

Less than 44 seconds back of Frame came Howdy Wilcox, Indianapolis youngster, driving his first major race, to finish second.

Cliff Bergere, Los Angeles, a former movie stunt man in flying and automobile crackups, finished third, about 2 1-2 miles back of Wilcox. Baby Carey, a Hoosier from Anderson was fourth with Russell Snowberger, Philadelphia fifth. Zeke Meyer, Philadelphia was sixth and Ira Hall, Terre Haute, Indiana, was 7th.

Only 14 of the original 40 starters survived the strenuous competition of nerve, mechanical stamina and daring speed. One by one the 26 others dropped out of the race because of motor trouble or exciting smash-ups.

Arnold Cracks Up

Billy Arnold, 27, Chicago, one of Monday's favorites, escaped dashing to death, just as he did a year ago, when his car, speeding more than 100 miles an hour, crashed into the high retaining wall on the dangerous north turn, torpedoed to the top of the banked turn and hung there, a twisted wreck.

Arnold miraculously escaped with a broken collar bone while his mechanic, Spider Matlock, Chicago sustained a broken pelvis bone. It was just a year ago that Arnold crashed almost into the same spot in a smash-up that sent him to the hospital for six months. Monday Arnold set out determined to triumph and he bounced into the lead while the huge crowd of 140,000 to 150,000 gasped in excitement at his daring driving. At the time of the crash Arnold was tearing along on his 150th mile with a comfortable lead to his credit.

Foreign Threat Eliminated

The race just had started when Gordon's car went over the wall as the racers were beginning their second lap.

The only foreign invader, Juan Guadino, Buenos Aires, met with complete failure. The young South American was forced to surrender after his car, an American built 8-cylinder, developing trouble from the start, had traveled only 175 miles. Guadino, bruised and sore from the bumping he received in jolting over the 2 1-2 mile brick course, was forced to yield his seat to a relief driver after going 66 laps. Guadino was downcast over failure of his car to perform up to expectations.

By his triumphs Frame finds himself in a position to cash in about $250,000. He received $20,000 as first prize and will pick up other thousands racing this season as the winner of the motor classic always is a major attraction on the dirt courses of the nation.

Umpire Breaks Hand In Fight With Twirler

CLEVELAND, May 30. (AP)—George Moriarity, American league umpire, broke his hand in a fight with several Chicago White Sox players Monday, following Cleveland's victory in both games of a doubleheader.

Cleveland players said Charley Berry, Chicago catcher, challenged Moriarity to fight following a dispute over a third strike. Moriarty accepted the challenge, the players said, as other Chicago players gathered around him in the dressing room, saying he "would fight the whole bunch, one at a time."

Milt Gaston, Sox pitcher, stepped up saying, "You might as well start with me." Moriarty struck him twice, knocking him out and breaking his hand.

Cleveland players parted the battlers, including Berry, Grube, Cather, and Fonseca, manager.

Grab Afternoon Contest, 5-2, After Dropping Morning Game

BROOKLYN, May 30, (AP)—Watson Clark and Van Mungo each pitched his fifth straight victory as the Dodgers swept Monday's holiday bill with the Phillies, 13-4 and 5-3. Each allowed only four hits, and Mungo struck out twelve batters in the eight innings he worked in the nightcap.

The first victory was an easy one, despite the Dodgers made seven errors behind Clark, but it required a four-man rally in the last of the eighth to pull out the second tilt. Klein, with a single and triple, batted in all the runs off Mungo.

BOSTON, May 30, (AP)—Forty thousand fans, pulling for the Braves to fatten their standing, had a painful Memorial Day as they watched the New York Giants take a pair from the home boys, 6-2, and 4-2, the second in 10 innings.

Carl Hubbell's tight pitching and Mel Ott's home run with two on featured the opening tussle. Sam Gibson had the Braves shutout in the nightcap until two were out in the ninth, when Randy Moore delivered a pinch double and "Pinky" Hargraves hit a home run to tie the count.

Cubs, Cards Split

CHICAGO, May 30, (AP)—Rogers Hornsby's bat led the Chicago Cubs to a 6-2 victory over St. Louis in the second game of Monday's doubleheader after the world champions had mistreated their old mate, Burleigh Grimes, to win the opener, 6-4.

The Hornsby war club cracked Tex Carleton for a home run and a double, the former blow being the first Cub score, and the latter starting a seventh inning drive that netted two runs and put the Cubs safely in front.

Grimes sailed along in great shape until the seventh inning of the opener, but the Cards opened up then and before the side could be retired, five runs had scored and the ball game was gone. Doubles by Bottomley and Collins helped the removal of Grimes.

In the ninth, Jim Lindsey went to the rescue and retired the side. Paul Derringer started and gave way to Allan Stout.

Guy Bush started in the second game, but was yanked at the end of the sixth, and Charlie Root finished. Bush, however, was credited with the victory.

The split enabled the Cubs to increase their lead over the Boston Braves, who dropped two to the New York Giants, to two and one-half games. The first overflow crowd of the season, more than 40,000 attended.

ATHLETICS TAKE TWO FROM SENS

Foxx Collects Seventeenth Homer of Season In Second Game

PHILADELPHIA, May 30, (AP)—In a home run mood, the Philadelphia Athletics crashed through to two victories over the Washington Senators in the holiday bill Monday.

The Mackmen won the morning game, 13-2 and came back in the afternoon to win an uphill decision 8-6. A total of 40,000 fans watched the games.

The Athletics hit five home runs in swamping Firpo Marberry in the morning affair and giving Lelty Grove his seventh straight win, or eight in all. Al Simmons and Jimmy Dykes each hit twice for the circuit in this fray and Ed Coleman, coast league rookie, connected for the other.

Jimmy Foxx's 17th home run of the season with two on base in the seventh inning, off Crowder, wiped out the Senators' 5-3 lead in the afternoon game. Ossie Bluege and Heinie Manush also hit for the circuit in this contest.

Jimmy Foxx, leading the league batting, had only two hits for his seven times up.

Earnshaw pitched his usual good game for the Athletics. The Senators opened up on him with a two run lead but he settled down and kept the hits well scattered during the remainder of the game.

DREAM OF TEXAS COWBOY BLASTED AS PLANE FALLS

Nat Browne Spent Year In Face of Hardships Preparing For Flight

NEW YORK, May 30. (AP)—The dream of a Texas cowpuncher, whose pioneer blood stood him in good stead during the reverses of a year of preparation, collapsed Monday when the monoplane of Nat C. Browne plummeted to the waters of Elliott bay at the start of a Seattle to Toyko flight.

Browne determined 12 months ago to make a long distance flight —an ambition that he persisted in following, despite such mishaps as mechanical trouble which blocked an attempt in February to fly from Old Orchard, Maine, to Buenos Aires and his first take-off for Tokio Sunday.

Groomed It Himself

He groomed his plane literally with his own hands. At Old Orchard he made long and painstaking tests, once actually lifting a load about four times the weight of his ship—including 1,000 gallons of gasoline. Both in Maine and at Seattle he perfected minor improvements on the plane to facilitate its performance.

Six feet tall, weighing more than 200 pounds, it frequently seemed to onlookers that the college athlete and rancher, now 37, was lifting his plane into the air with sheer strength.

Leaving Baylor university during the World war he enlisted as a flying cadet in the army school at San Antonio, Texas.

The war ended, Browne purchased two planes for a barnstorming tour through the mid-West. From 1926 to 1928 he was a Ford pilot out of Detroit. When James H. Rand, Jr., of New York purchased a pleasure ship for 14 persons "Nat" became its pilot as a part of the sale. Subsequently with Rand he became an important figure in a South American air line.

First Over the Andes

He was credited with flying the first passenger plane to cross the Andes, over a perilous 800-mile route between Buenos Aires and Santiago, Chile, where flying frequently is at 20,000 feet.

He returned to the United States late in 1930 and shortly thereafter began studying for a long distance adventure.

Browne has twice married, his first wife having died several years ago. His present wife is the former Miss Lillian Harris of Detroit who traveled to South America in 1929 and married him at Montevideo, Uruguay.

DO YOU INHALE?

Is this question too revealing for other cigarettes?

WE do not criticize others. We merely call your attention to the fact that the vital subject of inhaling has been generally avoided in cigarette advertising.

Why? What's there to be afraid of? Everybody inhales! Seven out of ten smokers inhale knowingly—the other three do so without realizing it. From your side—you want to be sure that the smoke you breathe in is pure and clean—free from certain impurities.

But from the manufacturer's side—he should be sure of giving you this protection. And if he is sure—he need not worry about the question: "Do you inhale?"

Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question ... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!
